THE SPEAKER'S VIEWS.

Judge Crisp of Georgia has been elected speaker of the fifty-third congress, the Democratic majority having voted for him unanimously. Congressman Reed, speaker of the fifty-first congress, received the votes of the Republicans. Thirteen Populists decided to vote as a unit to maintain the present ratio of silver, 16 to 1, and made no nominations for officers of the house.

As the views of the speaker on legislative affairs are almost as important as those of the president, the remarks Judge Crisp are of interest. He said after his nomination.

"The extraordinary condition of affairs throughout the country has necessitated our meeting in extraordinary session. Insofar as that condition is attributable to existing laws we are in no wise responsible therefor. Now, for the first time in more than thirty years, we are in full power. We can repeal laws, and we can make good ones. The people have entrusted us to exercise it for their benefit."

"Our financial system should be revised and reformed, the strictest economy in public expenditures should be observed, and taxation should be equalized and greatly reduced. To these purposes we are thoroughly committed. We must redeem our pledges. Let us begin work at once. Let us lay aside every other consideration than the public good and endeavor to so discharge the duties assigned us to restore confidence, promote prosperity and advance the general welfare of all classes of our people."

As stated by the speaker, the Democrats for the first time in over thirty years are in full power at Washington and the people expect them to exercise that power for the benefit of the public. That our financial system should be revised and reformed, that the strictest economy in public expenditures should be observed and taxation equalized and reduced all agree, though there is a wide difference of opinion as to the method of accomplishing these desirable objects. The people west and south are almost unanimous in the belief that the way to revise and reform our financial system is to open the mint to silver as well as gold, as the founders of the government provided and as had been the custom from the establishment of the mint in 1792 to the passage of the demonetization act of 1873. Eastern people imbued with goldbug ideas think silver should be completely demonetized and the finances of the country placed upon a single standard. The speaker does not intimate which, if either, of those methods received his approval, though he has been classed as a free coinage man.

Regarding economy in public expenditures and the equalization and reduction of taxation there are also differences of opinion. Many favor expenditures for the increase of the army and navy and the erection of public buildings in every town of importance, and on the question of reducing and equalizing taxation the people are very nearly equally divided. Everybody engaged in what are known as protected industries is opposed to reducing taxation, while the producers of grain, cotton, pork and articles of export generally favor it. That, however, at the present time is of minor importance compared with the financial question, as many people are unable to purchase the necessities of life even at free trade prices, while if congress will open the mints to silver on an equality with gold and make money plentiful people will not complain if prices are higher.

GENUINE SILVER MEN.

The attention of the self-styled non-partisans, who say they are in favor of the free coinage of silver, while upholding parties known to be opposed to it, is respectfully directed to the action of the Populists in congress. They met in caucus and unanimously decided to vote as a unit for free coinage at the present ratio of 16 grains of silver to 1 grain of gold. That there are members of other parties in both houses of congress who favor free coinage at the present ratio, there is no doubt, but that the party lash or the mandates of King Caucus will control their action to a considerable extent is also undisputed. Under such circumstances can there be a sincere advocate of the full remonetization of silver who does not wish that the Populists were more numerous in both houses of congress? If they were in the majority the very first bill that would pass congress would restore silver to its old standard. That is one of the reasons for making the financial question a political issue. The Populists were elected on a platform that unequivocally declared for free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1, and they agree to vote as a unit for that principle. The leaders of the other parties proclaimed in the west that they, too, favored free coinage, while in the east they told a different story. Now the hour of trial has come and the thirteen Populists, true to the silver cause, decided to vote as a unit for free coinage. Let us hope that enough congressmen from the west and south will throw off the party shackles, defy King Caucus and combine with the Populists to pass a bill that will restore silver to its old standard, release the people from the clutches of the goldbugs and restore prosperity to the country.

THE MESSAGE

Of the President Will Be Given the Public To-day

OUTLINE OF ITS CONTENTS.

Cleveland Strongly Opposed to the Free Coinage of Silver.

OUTLINE OF THE MESSAGE.

The President Does Not Favor the Coinage of Silver Under Present Conditions, Except for Subsidiary Purposes. To Discuss the Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, August 7.—The president's message will go to congress tomorrow. Beyond the fact that it contains about 8,000 words and that it is principally devoted to financial matters nothing definite is given out regarding it. It is understood that the president recommends the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act. Free silver Democrats express themselves agreeably surprised at what they understand his mode of ratio to be. The president recommends that while recommending the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act, they understand he recognized silver as one of the money metals, which must be maintained, but points out that, with the present attitude of European countries the proper ratio between gold and silver cannot be maintained by this country alone. Therefore he does not favor coinage under the present conditions, except for subsidiary purposes. He thinks that in this way Europe may be coerced into a national agreement more favorable than heretofore. He favors silver on a parity with gold and stands by the platform of 1892, but says the platform cannot be carried out because a fixed parity cannot be maintained.

Prominent Democrats of both wings have been given to understand that these are the president's wishes. It is understood that Cockran of New York and Bynum of Indiana will lead the anti-silver Democrats of the house. A DISCUSSION OF THE SILVER QUESTION. Cockran went to Culberson of Texas and Bland and stated that the anti-silver men were willing to start in with a discussion of the silver question, on the second day of the session, without referring it or waiting for its consideration or report from any committee. The underlying motive is said to be a fear that Crisp will give the silver men a majority on the coinage committee. He urged upon the silver leaders that to wait for a committee report would delay action; that it would be at least two weeks, and probably three, before any of the committees would be announced.

Cockran told Cochran that he would not agree to the proposition. He believed the silver men could get their views before the country in very much better shape embodied in a report from a majority of the committee on coinage. Cochran said he was willing to jump into the middle of the discussion at once. He agreed that there should be no closure; that every man should say everything he had to say on the subject of silver without interruption, and at the end of the discussion there should be a vote on every proposition. Bland also was not favorable to the proposition at the outset, and at two subsequent consultations Bland was unable to be present. They are to meet again to-day if possible. The intention is that Cochran shall, at the first opportunity, introduce a bill to repeal the Sherman act outright, without any conditions or substitutes.

Cockran or someone will introduce a bill which will provide for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, and provide for the coinage of silver without charge for mintage at the ratio of 16 to 1.

The bill, it is understood, in its wording will follow as closely as may be section 7 of the Democratic platform of 1892, which favors the coinage of both gold and silver, without discriminating against either metal or charge for mintage; but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value or be adjusted through an international agreement or by such safeguards of legislation as will insure the maintenance of the parity between the two metals and have equal power at all times in the markets and in the payment of debts.

By this means, it is thought, the Democratic opponents of a bill thus framed will be put in an attitude before the country of opposing their own platform.

Notwithstanding the low price of silver the Reno Reduction Works will start up this morning in the hope that by reason of prompt and favorable action by congress the white metal may rally to $1.20 before the clean-up.

There was an electric disturbance Sunday night which interfered with telegraphic communication. Faint flashes of aurora borealis were visible. The astronomers at the Lick observatory are of the opinion that the comet recently visible in the northwest was attracted to the sun and caused the electrical phenomenon.

BREVITIES.

President Cleveland and party arrived at New York on their way to Washington and refused to be interviewed.

W. R. Chamberlain was partially paralyzed at Quincy, Plumas county, Cal., last Thursday. He arrived at home Saturday night. His right side is affected, but strong hopes are entertained of his complete recovery as he has a robust constitution.

Chas Madrid, a Mexican cook, went to his home in Winnemucca drunk. The Silver State says he amused himself by showing his wife how proficient he was in the art of self-defense, and wound up by slashing her in the head with a razor. He was arrested and fined $20.

An expert in the employ of Denver capitalists last week made a thorough examination of the Horn mine, near Washoe city, with a view to purchase. Like most clever experts he gave out no opinion, but contented himself with taking an option and a plentiful supply of the different grades of the ore.

The Dayton Times says Mr. Garabaldi, who was an owner in the Fish ranch, sold his interest in the ranch for $2,800 and left for parts unknown, leaving many creditors. He borrowed all the money he could and it is estimated that he owes between $5,000 and $6,000 to persons in Dayton, Carson and Virginia City.

William J. Woolcock, a Humboldt boy, born and raised in the county, and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Woolcock of Mill City, was married in San Francisco recently to Miss Florence De Witt an estimable young lady of that city. The JOURNAL wishes the happy couple a long and pleasant voyage on the matrimonial sea.

Yesterday K. Nelson, an employee of the Verdi Mill Company, had his hand caught in the machinery of the mill and badly crushed. He was brought to Reno by Leon Lonkey, one of the owners of the mill, and Dr. Patterson amputated the middle finger of the hand, dressed the wound and will endeavor to save the hand and the other fingers.

The Appeal says J. W. Haines the first graduate of the Keeley Institute at Carson, is about town receiving the congratulations of his friends. He says a person cannot fully realize his happiness unless he has had his experience. He feels as if he was born again, and says there is nothing in the world like the Keeley cure for a man whose brain has been fuddled year after year.

Sunday afternoon Ben Shearer noticed a dense smoke arising from a pile of wood in Aitkin's wood yard. He telephoned the fact to the Western Union office and it was reported immediately to the railroad office. An alarm was turned in; the yard engine and hose cart hastened to the scene of the fire, which was close to the English mill ditch. The locomotive turned on a stream and the railroad men put out the fire, though it took a good deal of water to do it. The supposition is that the fire was set by tramps who had been smoking on the shady side of the pile.

Mrs. R. M. Howland and two daughters, Misses Edith and Lulu, passed through Reno yesterday morning from San Francisco en route to the World's Fair. Mrs. Howland was born and raised in Carson city, and will be remembered by all old Nevadans as Miss Louise Meyer. Her husband, R. M. Howland, who died in Arizona about five years ago, was one of the widest known and most popular men on the coast. Bob, as he was familiarly known, came to Carson in 1861 with Gov. Nye and received the appointment of warden of the territorial prison. Mrs. Howland expects to visit Carson on her return.

INDIAN ALLOTMENT AGENT.
An Old Acquaintance of Congressman
Newlands.

Senator Bernard Arntzen, of Quincy, Illinois, recently appointed special agent to make allotment of lands to Indians, is at Carson. The Quincy Herald, published at Mr. Arntzen's home, has the following relative to his visit to Nevada.

"Do you know anybody in that far-off part of the country, senator?" a reporter inquired yesterday.

"Well, sir," came the response, "I presume I do, for I have never yet been away from home that I did not meet some acquaintance and in most unexpected quarters, too."

"I shall probably meet the Honorable Frank G. Newlands, an old friend of mine who formerly lived in Quincy. It was before your time here, but early in the '50s a Dr. Newlands came to this city and began the practice of his profession. He died and left a widow and several children. Mrs. Newlands, I may say, was one of the brightest and most meritorious women who ever lived in Quincy—a splendid woman.

Afterward she married again and became the wife of Ebenezer Moore. Moore, by the way, was the first mayor of Quincy, being elected to office in 1840. At the time of his marriage he was senior partner in the banking house of Moore, Hollowbush & Co., and Frank Newlands was his cashier.

"In later years Frank went to California, and, as you may know, was not so very long ago appointed executor of Senator Sharon's estate. He was elected to congress on a free silver ticket and served his constituency with rare ability. He is a generous fellow with a heart as big as that of an ox."

"An instance comes to my mind: Orin Skinner, you know, married Judge Brownin's daughter, Miss Emma. When fortune overtook her through her husband's acts, Frank Newlands proved a friend in need. He sent to her a large draft, accompanied by a letter couched in the kindest language, and begged her to do him the favor to draw upon him for any amount she might need and whenever she needed it. That was characteristic of the man. I could tell you a number of instances where he acted in a similar manner, yet always so quietly and unostentatiously that few beside the beneficiaries of his generosity knew of it."

"Mr. Frank Newlands is now in Nevada and I hope to meet him there. He will doubtless prove of benefit to me, being so well acquainted in that part of the country and having so intimate a knowledge of the people."

PARADISE PARAGRAPHS.

Agricultural, Educational and Mining Notes.

PARADISE, August 4th, 1893.

EDITOR RENO JOURNAL.—Thinking a short communication from Paradise may be of interest to your readers I send the following:

The weather is very hot just now, 104 in the shade, the highest ever known here.

The hay crop is half in and promises to be about the average. There will be cut and stacked in this valley about 20,000 tons so we will not be short of hay next winter.

The grain crop is very good especially wheat which is heavy and well filled. This valley is noted for producing the best wheat in the state of Nevada. The grain harvest will not commence for two weeks yet.

The residence of Henry Knicka was burned to the ground with all its contents. Not a thing was saved that was in the house. The fire started on the roof when all the men were out at work in the hay field.

The people here are very much excited at the action of the school trustees in electing a principal against the will and wish of at least four-fifths of the patrons of the school, and even the children are dissatisfied.

The people held an indignation meeting and passed resolutions condemning the action of the board and another meeting is called for Saturday August 12th, 1893.

There is some work being done in the mines at Spring City. The Bullion mine is looking first rate, they are taking out some very fine ore now and have quite a large body of it in sight. The Paradise mill will be started up on the ore in about three weeks. If silver was not so depressed by the gold-bug element, the Bullion mine would be one of the leading and best paying mines in the state. When the free coinage bill is passed Spring City will boom again as of old and will give employment to one hundred or more miners.

Wedding Party.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Flint, the contracting parties being Miss Genie E. Merrill of Hot Springs and Mr. Alfred T. Hammeron of Belmont. The parlors were beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride wore a traveling suit of pearl colored cloth and silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Gertrude Gillman, who acted as bridesmaid was dressed in white and carried a bouquet of pinks and maiden hair. T. W. Hammeron of Belmont brother of the groom acted as best man. After the ceremony an elegant dinner was set by Mrs. Flint.

Among those present were Mrs. Merrill, mother of the bride; Frank and Lillian Merrill, brother and sister of the bride; Mrs. L. L. Ray, the Misses Gilman, Rev. Mr. Brady and wife, Miss Jessie Ford, Mrs. E. C. Ford and others.

A number of elegant presents were received: Silver tea set from brother and sister of the bride; set of silver knives, forks and spoons, from mother of the bride; silver sugar spoon, Mrs. P. S. Davies of San Francisco; china dinner set, Mr. and Mrs. Hammeron, of Belmont, father and mother of groom; photograph holder, head rest and water pitcher, Mrs. L. L. Ray; plush album, Mrs. L. J. Flint; set china, Miss Jessie Ford and mother; silver butter knife, Frank Merrill.

The couple took the westbound train for Santa Cruz, Cal.

A VALUABLE DOLLAR.

One of the Rarest of United States Coins.

One of the rarest coins of the United States mintage was recently sold in Boston for $1,200. It was a silver dollar of 1804. There are many stories about this issue of United States coin.

It is said that there are not more than eight known to be in existence. According to the record of the United States mint, 18,570 silver dollars were coined in 1804. One of the stories about the use of this mintage is that they were sent to Africa to pay off American sailors who were engaged in a war on the Mediterranean with Tripoli at that time. It is said that the natives took a great fancy to these coins and that the sailors parted with them for souvenirs. It was stated that later the chiefs of tribes valued these dollars so highly as ornaments and tokens that they took great trouble to get possession of them and that, partly through robbery and trickery, they succeeded in getting possession of all the dollars issued that year. The dollar of 1804 has a flying eagle with thirteen stars upon the reverse, while the face bears the date and the head of the goddess of liberty with floating hair.

County Commissioners.

The board of county commissioners met yesterday; present, a full board.

After the usual claims were allowed the following business was transacted:

The bids of the Gazette and JOURNAL for printing and binding in book form of the city ordinances were opened, and the bid of the JOURNAL of $1.25 per page was accepted, it being the lowest, the Gazette bid being $1.30 per page.

The claims of Justice Linn and Constable Dickey were laid over.

Action on the petition of L. S. Mason and others for a bridge across the Orr ditch on Ralston street, was postponed until next January.

The district attorney was directed to take the necessary legal steps to collect from Eureka county the amount now due Washoe county for temporary care of one Fitzgerald, a Eureka county patient.

A Lively Runaway.

A horse attached to W. O. H. Martin's delivery wagon broke loose in front of the residence of Dr. Patterson last evening, dashed down Ralston street at a 2:40 gait and ran against a telephone pole on Second street. There the horse parted company with the wagon and ran toward Virginia. He was caught by a young man and taken back to the scene of the accident. The horse escaped without injury, but the harness and wagon did not. Willie, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Phillips was playing on the sidewalk and narrowly escaped being run over by the horse. The little fellow got to the fence, and turning around after the horse galloped past, coolly remarked, "Well, he didn't catch me."

"German Syrup"

A Cough For children a medicine should be absolutely reliable. A mother must be able to Medicine. Give her faith to it as to her Bible. It must contain nothing violent, uncertain, or dangerous. It must be standard in material and manufacture. It must be plain and simple to administer; easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief, as children's troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe and fret and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite or general health. These things suit as well as young folks, and make Bo-schée's German Syrup the favorite family medicine.

SEX RELATIONSHIP.

A CALM AND DISPASSIONATE VIEW OF "THE WOMAN QUESTION."

The Future of a Nation's Prosperity Depends in Great Part on the Marriage Relation—Lessons Drawn From the History of Ancient Greece and Rome.

The rights and wrongs of women are now debated with a vigor and virulence which increase every day. Those who demand for women not only all the privileges which men possess, but also continued exemption from their responsibilities, would carry the principle of female emancipation to a point which has aroused opposition on the part of many who are in every great question of the day admittably leaders of the party of progress. While the contest rages as to whether women are to know, say and do everything that the coarsest of men can, or, on the other hand, be kept completely in the background, people are apt to forget what is really the crucial point of the whole question.

They forget that the position of women, and of men, too, for that matter, is inseparably bound up with the relationships between the sexes known as marriage; are apt to forget the importance of that relationship not only to individuals, but to the state; are apt to forget that too rigorous a subjection of women may bring us near to barbarism, too great an emancipation may lead to that corruption which has so often in the world's history been the outcome of a civilization which has not placed due restraint on the passions and impulses.

The prosperity of a country depends on the proper maintenance of the relations between husband and wife quite as much as on its outer strength, and however great and powerful a country may seem to be, if these domestic relations are unhealthy, if the wife has not her place in the social polity, that country is rotten to the core, and its complete decay and demoralization are inevitable. Speaking generally, there are four aspects or ideals of the status of the wife—four ways in which her position is regarded by men.

There is the method of the barbarian, that of the oriental, that of western civilization, that of corrupt civilization, which last is practically the degraded form of the third. The barbarian regards his wife as a mere slave—a squaw to cook his food, carry his burdens, submit to his ill usage. The oriental sees in his wife a plaything to gratify his passions, to be kept in the strictest seclusion, and to be treated altogether as a brainless being; regarded by him, in fact, so far as any respect is concerned, much as the squaw is regarded by the savage.

From the third point of view the wife's position is very different. True, she is the mother of her husband's children; true, she has duties to perform which her husband would disdain; true, her husband is the head of the family, and she bears his name. But with all this she is looked upon as her husband's equal, is the sharer of his counsels, his intelligent partner and has a right to expect from him the fidelity which in the case of the savage or the oriental is so one-sided.

The credit of placing this view of married life before mankind has been claimed by Christian writers for their religion. But although we must admit that Christianity has done much to improve the position of woman, yet the high ideal which we have termed that of western civilization existed in a very strong degree in ancient Greece, still more strongly among the Romans and the nations of western Europe, whom they conquered and civilized long before Christianity was preached, and the noble qualities which we admire in those races may often be directly traced to the influence of wives and mothers.

But high as is this ideal, history shows that there are dangers which threaten those societies where it prevails; danger the outcome of that very civilization which it has done so much to perfect. Luxury, prosperity, too great liberty, want of mutual respect and continual striving after new sensations are too apt to destroy that wholesome state of things which has been the palladium of every great nation, and we too often have examples of the fourth ideal, which, though springing from the third, is so distinct from it that it deserves to be classed by itself. Where a wife is no longer content with taking her share in the battle of life, no longer content to recognize the fact that there are things which it better becomes the woman to do than the man, and vice versa; when she insists on going and sharing the follies and vices of the man, on casting from her that modesty and reserve which are woman's greatest charms; when she spurns maternity and domestic duties as trivial or monotonous, then indeed the marriage state must fail to disintegrate; then the fatherland must surely suffer.

It was this which led to the unspeakable horrors of imperial Rome; it was the unsexed women, their profligacy only equaled by their audacity, who were responsible as much as Nero and Domitian themselves for the downfall of Roman civilization. Otho and Silius would have been impossible but for Poppea and Messalina. In latter times, too, and even in Christian countries, where the marriage tie was in theory held so sacred that if duly celebrated it could only be dissolved by death, we have seen a state of things as bad—Westminster Review.

Moustaches and Beards.

Englishmen only a generation ago had such a detestation of mustaches and beards that the practice of shaving all hair off their face down to their navel-chop whiskers was all but universal. From one extreme our clean shaven fathers plunged into the other, and beards and mustaches rapidly became the fashion. The fashion has of late years again been modified. Beards are less common, but the mustache is cultivated in England as widely as on the continent—London Standard.
